Editorial

It is of immense pleasure for us to bring Volume 24 Number 2 of Administration and Management Review with the continuous support from the distinguished authors and valuable readers. In the history of 24 years, this journal has documented and disseminated many valuable research findings in the area of administration, management and development.

Nevertheless, in the changing dynamics of academic and policy discourse, we have felt the necessity to improve the quality and scope of existing journal. This will ultimately add the value in the administration, management, governance and development discourse of Nepal and elsewhere. Considering this fact, Nepal Administrative Staff College (NASC) has taken the following initiatives to improve the quality and scope of journal to be effective from next volume of journal.

1) The forthcoming journal will be published as "Journal of Management and Development Studies".
2) It will be peer reviewed journal. Each article should go through blind peer review process.
3) Articles will be first published in NASC's journal portal and later published in a collected volume once in a year.
4) The articles are collected throughout the year and published in e-journal immediately after completing all quality assurance measures.
5) Each author will be provided opportunity to disseminate the article findings in relevant forum organized by NASC.

We invite all potential authors to submit research articles maintaining the standards prescribed by the editorial board of "Journal of Management and Development Studies" via journal@nasc.org.np. The articles can broadly be submitted in the area of administration, management, governance and development. For detail information and updates please regularly visit www.nasc.org.np.
